Organizations and Collections

Organizations:

Bitwarden Organizations add a layer of collaboration and sharing to password management for your family, team, or enterprise, allowing you to securely share common information like office wifi passwords, online credentials, or shared company credit cards. Secure sharing of Organization-owned credentials is safe and easy. For more information on organizations checkout the upstream documentation.

Viewing organizations can be found on the right hand of the page.

Within the Organization View:

Something to note is that all organization passwords in your view will show up with a "shared" Icon:

Collections:

Collections are Similar to Folders in that they provide a way to logically group items for your organization. For more information on Collections, check out the upstream documentation.

> Think of Collections as Organization-equivalents to the Folders used to organize a Personal Vault, with a few key differences:
>
> - Organizations control access to Organization-owned items by assigning users or Groups to Collections.
>
> - Organization-owned items must be included in at least one Collection.

Note in Compositional Enterprises Instances, the "Move to organization" button will show as "Share" as seen below:
